THE LOCATION:

Pontrhydfendigaid (meaning "the bridge over the blessed ford") is about 1.8 miles to the west, by the river Teifi, with a village store, primary school, and two pubs. The B4343 road passes through the village.

Strata Florida Abbey ruins are about 1 mile away, dating back to the 12th Century – the 'Westminster of Wales', where many Welsh princes are buried. The Cistercian monks controlled the economy of this upland region in the Middle Ages, owning vast areas of sheep farming land and exploiting the mineral resources as well as the rivers and lakes for fishing. They travelled over long distances, and built a network of roads over a wide region. For information on the site and current project please refer to: <http://www.strataflorida.org.uk/>

The Teifi Pools are a few miles further to the north-east, some 1500 feet up in the mountains, being the source of the river Teifi, which journeys over about 70 miles down to its estuary at Cardigan. The river forms most of the boundary between Ceredigion and Carmarthenshire, has many beauty spots along its course, and is popular with canoeists and anglers.

The Cambrian Mountains occupy the region between the Snowdonia and Brecon Beacons National Parks to the north and south, the plateau generally being between 1500ft and 2500ft above sea level – empty and magnificent – with the long-distance Cambrian Way Footpath travelling the length.

Cors Caron National Nature Reserve by the River Teifi is a few miles west of the property (north of Tregaron) – a huge raised bog with a reddish hue, supporting a wide variety of birds and other flora and fauna, offering walks including a board walk with a hide and information boards. It was formed at the end of the Ice Age – when a great lake filled with vegetation and peat, which continued to rise above the water. It is one of Europe's largest peat bogs and an important wetland reserve.

Tregaron is 7 miles south-westerly in the Teifi Valley, set at the western flank of the Cambrian Mountains, a small market town serving a widespread agricultural community, having a selection of shops, post office, weekly street market, hotel and cafe, doctor's, primary and secondary schools, leisure centre and swimming pool, as well as a Red Kite & Information Centre, the Rhiannon Welsh Gold Centre, where goldsmiths can be watched at work, and a Celtic Craft Shop. Country lanes, tracks and footpaths lead into the uplands, making this old market town a walking/cycling/fishing/bird-watching tourist centre.

Lampeter is 18 miles south-westerly, a university and market town by the Teifi, providing a range of individual shops, leisure centre with swimming pool, cafes, restaurants and pubs, doctors and dentists, primary and secondary schools, and the oldest University in Wales (1822).

Aberystwyth is 16 miles north-westerly, the main west coast town, regarded as the "capital of mid Wales", home to the National Library, with a university, wide promenade, marina, good shopping amenities, an excellent arts centre, cinema, leisure centre/sports facilities, general hospital, numerous cafes, bars and restaurants, hotels and pubs, and the usual seaside attractions, as well as an 18-hole golf course with sea views and an electric cliff railway. There is a coach/bus station and a main line railway station.
